David Williams was an architect, a government official, a city planner, a bon vivant, and a Texan. Born in 1890 near Childress on the Texas panhandle. Williams never separated himself from the values instilled by a childhood on the frontier or by growing up in the great expansiveness of his native state. Williams remained in Childress until 1913 when he left for Austin and an education at the University of Texas. Interests in architecture and engineering honed through work in a railroad foundry and correspondence study were developed at the university. He also served as staff member and editor of the yearbook, Cactus. Just before graduation he answered a bulletin board advertisement which led him to Tampico, Mexico and a short career in the oilfields. His engineering and architectural work in Mexico was set amidst the revolution which occasionally complicated life in Tampico. Nevertheless, Williams was able to amass a small fortune which allowed him to tour Europe in the early 1920s. Here he furthered his education in architecture and acquired a notable rare book collection which specialized in Renaissance architecture.

Williams returned from Europe and established an architectural practice in Dallas, Texas in 1924. During the next nine years he evolved a style which borrowed heavily from pioneer Texas buildings. Williams called this the "indigenous architecture." It became very influential in the southwest as practiced by Williams' disciples O'Neil Ford and Arch Swank. As Williams became a national figure he took his indigenous theories with him and introduced them to a larger audience. While in Dallas Williams became the center of a coterie of artists who heavily influenced the cultural life of the city then and of the entire state for many years thereafter. With the worsening of the Depression Williams became involved with community planning and the building of rural communities for the dispossessed first for the state and later at the national level. He was directly involved with the development of rural communities in Texas, Florida, Georgia, and Alaska. In 1936 Williams began working for the National Youth Administration where he eventually became Deputy Administrator. Again he was heavily involved with planning and architecture activities, including the La Villita project in San Antonio.

During World War II Williams served in two different capacities. First he worked with war housing where he made pioneering efforts in the field of prefabrication. Second he worked in Central and South America on road building and site planning operations. It was while he was in Central America that he survived an airplane crash but sustained a broken neck. Although he was not disabled by the accident, he never fully recovered and had health difficulties for the remainder of his life.

From 1945 until his retirement in 1951 Williams worked for a number of governmental agencies planning hospitals, designing tropic and arctic housing, and developing special housing projects in Venezuela. The employing agencies included USPHS, UNRRA, and the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

In retirement Williams resided in Lafayette, Louisiana where he served as a consultant and was active in the American Institute of Architects, the Texas Society of Architects, and the American Planning and Civic Association. He played a key role in obtaining the Louis Sullivan papers stored in Ocean Springs, Mississippi for the AIA. As a capstone to his career Williams was elected to a Fellowship of the American Institute of Architects in 1960.

One of Williams’ greatest contributions to architecture was his influence on promising young practitioners, especially during the Depression years. Williams tried to provide as many jobs as he could find for as many architects as possible. In this and other ways he influenced the life and career of men such as O'Neil Ford, Arch B. Swank, John Pritchard, Richard J. Neutra, Marshall Shaffer, and J. Palmer Boggs.

On December 31, 1934 Williams married Louise Lyle Givens of Lafayette, Louisiana. This collection is also a reflection of the life and work of Lyle, especially following Dave's death in 1962. Lyle was active in such groups as AAUW and the League of Women Voters. Before 1951 she worked for the American Red Cross while after the move to Lafayette she taught English at USL. The Williams' were both active in cultural organizations including little theatre groups in Dallas, Alexandria, Virginia, and Lafayette; the Lafayette Museum; and art groups.
Davida Williams was born in 1939. Many aspects of her life in the family are also chronicled in the collection, especially her interest in and talent for art. Williams was an avid amateur photographer so the collection contains an extensive subsection of photographs.

2 Crestway
Current owner: Rick and Frances Sims Dec 2013 - Current
Previous owners: Jerry and Patty Nabors June 1987 – Dec 2013
Mr. and Mrs. William C. Proctor Feb 1971 - June 1987
Leslie R. and Blanche Lee Stringer April 1927 – June 1971

The lot was purchased by the Stringers in April 1924 for a sum of $3,400.00. Mechanics Lien Contract Dated September 16, 1926 states a contract price of $19,861.00 to build a one-story tile and stucco – seven room residence. The house was completed in April 1927.

#2 Crestway was designed by regionally prominent architect David Reichard Williams (born October 17, 1890 2 ½ miles west of Childress, Texas in a 18 x 20 half dugout shelter, died March 10, 1962 in Lafayette, LA). This home is one of the few examples of David R. Williams’ architectural style in Wichita Falls. It is a style that he pioneered. The house is suited to the site and climate, as well as, being practical and functional. He used materials from the area (clay, stone and timber) and brought skilled tradesmen and craftsmen from Mexico to the site.

The house displays Spanish Colonial Revival details such as plastered walls, red-tiled low-pitched roofs, low relief ornamentations at the entry way, and niches with iron grilles. There are many unusual features in this house which characterize David Williams’ work including original massive copper hood and stone fireplace, carved stone columns, hand forged hardware and a special positioning of the house on the lot to take advantage of all the best of the elements. The irregular, angular plan of the house, however, represents an innovative interpretation of Spanish Colonial Revival. The house encompasses an inner courtyard and covered porch with fireplace. Access is available to the courtyard from most rooms of the house.

The house is 3,657 sq ft and consists of 3 bedrooms, living room, formal dining room, kitchen with breakfast area, 4 bathrooms, a family room, study, 6 gas fireplaces, and a 2-car detached garage. The current master bedroom/bathroom suite was added in 1950 by the Stringers. Jerry and Patty Nabors did a complete renovation of the interior and exterior of the house in 1987.

This property features a .35 acre pond that was once a watering hole for cattle. The pond was dredged and reclaimed to its original depth in 2011 and stocked with fish in 2012. Nessie who called the pond home for 12 years (a 20th anniversary present between Patty and Jerry Nabors) was removed from the pond several years ago and later restored back to her original glory. She resides with the Nabors at their new residence.
