22nd Camellia Pageant Opens
Acadian Bicentennial Year

Quel c'est! This Camellia Pageant brings a splash of color and festivity to the winter months, as it has done for as long as people can remember. As usual, the pageant was held at the town hall, with thousands of spectators in attendance. The pageant itself is a celebration of Acadian culture and heritage, and it is one of the highlights of the Acadian Bicentennial Year.

The pageant was opened with a parade of camellia盛开 blooms, accompanied by music and dance. The parade was led by the Acadian Band, followed by colorfully dressed dancers and floats. The theme of the pageant was "Celebrating Acadian Heritage," and it was a fitting way to begin the festivities.

As the parade wound its way through the streets, the audience was treated to a display of the beauty and variety of Camellias. The blooms came in every color of the rainbow, from soft pinks to deep reds, and they were showcased in stunning arrangements. The festival ended with a grand fireworks display, lighting up the night sky with hues of red, orange, and yellow.

The Camellia Pageant is not just a celebration of flowers, but also of community and tradition. It is a time when the Acadian community comes together to honor their history and their culture. During the pageant, there were also performances of traditional Acadian music and dance, adding to the festive atmosphere.

As the sun set on another successful Camellia Pageant, it was clear that the Acadian Bicentennial Year had begun with a bang. The celebrations will continue throughout the year, with events and activities planned for all ages. So come join in the fun and celebrate Acadian heritage with us!
