Cameron Continues Regrowth 4 Years After Hurricane Audrey

ELAMS MOVING INTO NEW HOUSE IS TYPICAL GAIN

BY JERRY LYNAS

Before long Jim Elam, his wife, Miriam, and their four children will move into a beautiful, new brick home on the eastern edge of Cameron, La. They will then vacate a trailer which has been their home since Hurricane Audrey swept away their house on June 27, 1957.

Things are looking up for the Elam family and for hundreds of other families in the coastal community, which just four years ago today was the scene of the worst natural catastrophe to strike a community in the United States in recent years.

The slab foundation, outside walls and roof of the home are almost completed and inside framing is under way. Construction is taking longer than usual because

Mr. Bext is doing much of the work himself in order to maintain his small welding business. But he takes a rapport of the work to be completed.

The same holds true in Cameron Parish, where the work in progress is typical of the type of work going on throughout the area.

In the town of Cameron, the work on the new hospital is well advanced, and the community is looking ahead to the completion of the new facility.

The town of Cameron, which was hard hit by the hurricane, is now recovering. The community is looking forward to the completion of the new hospital and other needed facilities.

Jury
