Picturesque Abbeville Hits Century Mark Monday

State’s ‘Treasure Chest’ Almost Played Second Fiddle to Perry

By George Arceaux

Abbeville’s Acadian Architecture

Abbeville’s oldest surviving home is slated to be torn down next week, even though it is a city landmark. The house was built in 1885 and is considered a historic site.

(Advertisement Staff Photo)

Vermilion’s First School

The school board is set for a complete renovation, which will probably cost around $2.5 million. The building is a historic site and is considered a district landmark.

(Advertisement Staff Photo)

Abbeville Plans Ball Game, Pageant For Purt-Lent Centennial Festival

(Advertisement Staff Photo)

Abbeville’s oldest surviving home is slated to be torn down next week, even though it is a city landmark. The house was built in 1885 and is considered a historic site.

(Advertisement Staff Photo)

Vermilion’s First School

The school board is set for a complete renovation, which will probably cost around $2.5 million. The building is a historic site and is considered a district landmark.

(Advertisement Staff Photo)

Abbeville’s oldest surviving home is slated to be torn down next week, even though it is a city landmark. The house was built in 1885 and is considered a historic site.

(Advertisement Staff Photo)

Vermilion’s First School

The school board is set for a complete renovation, which will probably cost around $2.5 million. The building is a historic site and is considered a district landmark.

(Advertisement Staff Photo)