Abbeville Victorian Home Built In 1880

By MARIO MAKALAKI
Special Features Writer

The family made its way to Abbeville and the Edwards family was greeted at the door by their mother, Elizabeth Edwards. The couple, along with their children, moved into the property and the Edwards family quickly became a part of the community. They were known for their hospitality and were always ready to welcome guests into their home.

The house was a well-known landmark in Abbeville and it was often the site of social events. It was a place where people could gather and enjoy each other's company. The Edwards family was proud of their home and they were known for their dedication to preserving the history of Abbeville.

Over the years, the house has been the site of many events. It has been used for weddings, parties, and other social gatherings. It has been a place where people have come together to celebrate and make memories.

Today, the house is still standing and it is a testament to the Edwards family's legacy. It is a reminder of the history of Abbeville and the role that the Edwards family played in shaping the community.