CENTENNIAL EVENTS SATURDAY

By Myra Fair Craig
Acadian Times Publisher

With the signing of an official proclamation by Police Jury President Joseph L. Barrow and Joseph A. Aranda, Secretary-Treasurer, Saturday, October 11, Acadiana's 189th birthday was officially declared, marking Acadiana's 189th birthday. The proclamation was signed by Police Jury President Joseph L. Barrow and Joseph A. Aranda, Secretary-Treasurer, making this historic day "Real" for the Parish.

Policeman Joe Brown and D.J. Dupas are heading the Centennial Committee as co-chairmen, and members of this historic group have been planning regular sessions in recent months to complete plans for a gala celebration of Acadiana's first "Century of Progress.

The group will be on display in the courthouse throughout the day, beginning at 10 a.m. each minute and concluding with a 10 a.m. parade and calisthenics with a traditional street-cloak from 4 to 8 p.m.

It Won't Happen:

But just in case of rain the Centennial Celebration will be on exhibit at the Parish Multi-Purpose Building in North Crowley.

Policeman Joe Brown and D.J. Dupas are heading the Centennial Committee as co-chairmen, and members of this historic group have been planning regular sessions in recent months to complete plans for a gala celebration of Acadiana's first "Century of Progress.

This will be an opportunity for Acadiana citizens to participate in the "100 Years of Progress, Oct. 11, 1894-1994." Through courtesy of the Louisiana Department of the Interior, with the permission of the State of Louisiana, the new monument to the Louisiana Centennial Building in front of the Acadiana Courthouse will be available for the 100th Birthday Celebration.

Central to the program of Friday, Acadiana's own "Bonfire Parade," will be stopped at 12 noon, honoring Acadiana's birth. The Bonfire Parade will be held at the Acadiana Courthouse, with a number of activities throughout the parade taking part in these two events of a hundred years ago.

At the time of the parade, from 12 to 1 p.m., a special session of the Court House will be stopped at 12 noon, honoring Acadiana's birth. The Bonfire Parade will be held at the Acadiana Courthouse, with a number of activities throughout the parade taking part in these two events of a hundred years ago.

The parade begins at 12 noon, with a brief opening ceremony, followed by the Bishop of the Catholic Church at 2:30 p.m. and the keynote address, delivered by Acadian historian, will serve as椅子 for the Last Exit Dance Contest, with a number of activities throughout the parade taking part in these two events of a hundred years ago.

The parade begins at 12 noon, with a brief opening ceremony, followed by the Bishop of the Catholic Church at 2:30 p.m. and the keynote address, delivered by Acadian historian, will serve as chairs for the Last Exit Dance Contest, with a number of activities throughout the parade taking part in these two events of a hundred years ago.

The parade begins at 12 noon, with a brief opening ceremony, followed by the Bishop of the Catholic Church at 2:30 p.m. and the keynote address, delivered by Acadian historian, will serve as chairs for the Last Exit Dance Contest, with a number of activities throughout the parade taking part in these two events of a hundred years ago.

Central to the program of Friday, Acadiana's own "Bonfire Parade," will be stopped at 12 noon, honoring Acadiana's birth. The Bonfire Parade will be held at the Acadiana Courthouse, with a number of activities throughout the parade taking part in these two events of a hundred years ago.

Central to the program of Friday, Acadiana's own "Bonfire Parade," will be stopped at 12 noon, honoring Acadiana's birth. The Bonfire Parade will be held at the Acadiana Courthouse, with a number of activities throughout the parade taking part in these two events of a hundred years ago.

Central to the program of Friday, Acadiana's own "Bonfire Parade," will be stopped at 12 noon, honoring Acadiana's birth. The Bonfire Parade will be held at the Acadiana Courthouse, with a number of activities throughout the parade taking part in these two events of a hundred years ago.

Central to the program of Friday, Acadiana's own "Bonfire Parade," will be stopped at 12 noon, honoring Acadiana's birth. The Bonfire Parade will be held at the Acadiana Courthouse, with a number of activities throughout the parade taking part in these two events of a hundred years ago.