Acadia Police Jury drops unmandated insurance

By JO CART

The Acadiana Police Jury has dropped the unmandated insurance on the citizens in the district. The jurors voted to remove the unmandated insurance from their budget.

The jurors were concerned about the increase in their insurance premiums. They decided to drop the unmandated insurance to reduce their expenses.

Juror Joe Arabin said, "I have received many complaints from the citizens in my district about the increase in premiums. We need to make a decision that is best for the citizens." The jurors agreed and voted to drop the unmandated insurance.

Juror John Rogers added, "We want to make sure we are spending our money wisely. The increase in insurance premiums is a burden for the citizens." The jurors acknowledged the concerns and voted to drop the unmandated insurance.

The decision was met with mixed reactions from the citizens. Some were happy with the decision, while others were concerned about the potential increase in premiums.

The Acadiana Police Jury is committed to providing quality services to the citizens while ensuring responsible fiscal management. The decision to drop the unmandated insurance is a step towards achieving this goal.
