Acadians Leave Quebec Tonight for Louisiana

A large delegation of Acadians from Quebec will leave from Montreal to Lafayette, Louisiana, at 8 p.m. CDT. The delegation will be headed by the traditional Acadian Association, which will be led by the president of the association from Quebec.

The delegation will consist of clergy, doctors, journalists, educators, and other professionals. They will take the train to New Orleans, where they will then travel to Lafayette by car.

They will arrive in Lafayette on November 30, where they will be greeted by the Lafayette Parish Council and the Acadian Association.

The delegation will visit various places in and around Lafayette, including the Capital Cultural Centre and the Acadian Village.

The delegation will then return to Quebec on December 1, where they will continue their work in the Acadian Association.

The Acadian Association is a group of Acadians from Quebec who work to promote Acadian culture and language in the United States. They have been active in Lafayette since the early 1970s and have made significant contributions to the Acadian community there.
