Anniversary Of Acadian Arrival
Theme Of Meeting In Lafayette

The 300th anniversary of the arrival of the Acadians in Louisiana was the theme of a recent meeting of state legislators in Lafayette.

Speaker J. B. Linson, who was a key figure in organizing the meeting, expressed the sentiment that Louisiana is a state where the Acadians have made their mark, and he called for continued celebration of their contributions to Louisiana's history.

"The Acadians have been an integral part of Louisiana's history," Linson said. "Their contributions have been significant in shaping the state in which we live."
