Stamp in Honor of French Asked

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—Congress will be asked by Louisianans to approve a special postage stamp commemorating the migration of French people to Louisiana.

The French, a group of French colonists living in Nova Scotia, were expelled by the British in 1755 because they refused to take an oath of allegiance to the British king. They were allowed to take only their money, and most brought their wives and families. Others were sold to slave traders. The migration was similar to that of the Acadian evacuees on the 200th anniversary.

Rep. C. A. Thompson (D-LA) and Rep. J. B. Davis (D-LA) in whose district reside many of the descendants of these French people, will sponsor the bill to make the stamp.

Bicentennial Stamp Asked By State Solons

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—Congress will be asked by Louisianans next year to approve a special postage stamp commemorating the migration of the French Acadians to Louisiana.

The Acadians, a group of French colonists living in Nova Scotia, were expelled by the British in 1755 because they refused to take an oath of allegiance to the British king. They were allowed to take only their money, and most brought their wives and families. Others were sold to slave traders. The migration was similar to that of the Acadian evacuees on the 200th anniversary.

Rep. C. A. Thompson (D-LA) and Rep. J. B. Davis (D-LA) in whose district reside many of the descendants of these French people, will sponsor the bill to make the stamp.

Several Louisiana celebrations marking the event are planned.
