CODOFIL States Annual Meeting

United States Senator Mike Gravel of Alaska will be the main speaker of the third State Convention of the Council of Development of French in the United States and will deliver his speech in both languages.

The CODOFIL convention, to be held October 30 - 31 on the campus of Louisiana State University at Eunice (LSU-E), will be attended by delegates from three French-speaking areas of the United States. Senator Gravel is an advocate of bilingualism in the United States and will deliver his speech in both languages.

Plans for the conference were announced recently by State CODOFIL chairman James Domengeaux and by LSU-E officials.

600 Expected

At least 600 persons are expected to attend some or all of the events of the Convention, which is being hosted by LSU-E. The public is invited.

Speeches and panel discussions, which will be delivered in both languages, will be centered around Louisiana's French renaissance and the statewide movement to preserve and expand Louisiana's French language and culture. CODOFIL, a State agency, is spearheading the movement.

Panel Discussions

Panel discussions will be held on such topics as the necessity of French-language education starting in the first grade of elementary schools. And, on the lighter side, a battle of the Acadian bands is scheduled for the Eunice Mall on Friday night.

Registration will be held on Friday, October 30th, starting at 3 p.m., in the lobby of Acadia Bank and on Saturday at LSU-E in the Science building. Registration by mail is welcomed. Domengeaux noted that reservations can be made by writing CODOFIL, P.O. Box 3936, Lafayette, 70501.

France Represented

France will be represented at the convention by Jean LeCannellier, French Consul-general of the Southern States stationed in New Orleans, and by Mr. Jean-Michel Pettimelli, cultural attaché.

Canada will be represented by Pierre Asselin, Canadian Consul-general of the South, and Frank Hughes, Canadian Consul, stationed in New Orleans.

Quebec, French-speaking Province of Canada, will be represented by Jean-Paul L'Allier, Quebec minister of communications and civil service; Yves Michaud, Quebec commissioner-general of cooperation with the exterior; Louis Duclos, director of the American desk of the Quebec government; and Leo LeBlanc, Quebec Government representative in Louisiana permanently stationed in New Orleans. Gravel.

600 Expected

At least 600 persons are expected to attend some or all of the events of the Convention, which is being hosted by LSU-E. The public is invited.

Speeches and panel discussions, which will be delivered in both languages, will be centered around Louisiana's French renaissance and the statewide movement to preserve and expand Louisiana's French language and culture. CODOFIL, a State agency, is spearheading the movement.

Panel Discussions

Panel discussions will be held on such topics as the necessity of French-language education starting in the first grade of elementary schools. And, on the lighter side, a battle of the Acadian bands is scheduled for the Eunice Mall on Friday night.

Registration will be held on Friday, October 30th, starting at 3 p.m., in the lobby of Acadia Bank and on Saturday at LSU-E in the Science building. Registration by mail is welcomed. Domengeaux noted that reservations can be made by writing CODOFIL, P.O. Box 3936, Lafayette, 70501.

France Represented

France will be represented at the convention by Jean LeCannellier, French Consul-general of the Southern States stationed in New Orleans, and by Mr. Jean-Michel Pettimelli, cultural attaché.

Canada will be represented by Pierre Asselin, Canadian Consul-general of the South, and Frank Hughes, Canadian Consul, stationed in New Orleans.

Quebec, French-speaking Province of Canada, will be represented by Jean-Paul L'Allier, Quebec minister of communications and civil service; Yves Michaud, Quebec commissioner-general of cooperation with the exterior; Louis Duclos, director of the American desk of the Quebec government; and Leo LeBlanc, Quebec Government representative in Louisiana permanently stationed in New Orleans. Gravel.

CODOFIL States Annual Meeting

United States Senator Mike Gravel of Alaska will be the main speaker of the third State Convention of the Council of Development of French in the United States. Senator Gravel is an advocate of bilingualism in the United States and will deliver his speech in both languages.

The CODOFIL convention, to be held October 30 - 31 on the campus of Louisiana State University at Eunice (LSU-E), will be attended by delegates from three French-speaking areas of the United States. Senator Gravel is an advocate of bilingualism in the United States and will deliver his speech in both languages.

Plans for the conference were announced recently by State CODOFIL chairman James Domengeaux and by LSU-E officials.

600 Expected

At least 600 persons are expected to attend some or all of the events of the Convention, which is being hosted by LSU-E. The public is invited.

Speeches and panel discussions, which will be delivered in both languages, will be centered around Louisiana's French renaissance and the statewide movement to preserve and expand Louisiana's French language and culture. CODOFIL, a State agency, is spearheading the movement.

Panel Discussions

Panel discussions will be held on such topics as the necessity of French-language education starting in the first grade of elementary schools. And, on the lighter side, a battle of the Acadian bands is scheduled for the Eunice Mall on Friday night.

Registration will be held on Friday, October 30th, starting at 3 p.m., in the lobby of Acadia Bank and on Saturday at LSU-E in the Science building. Registration by mail is welcomed. Domengeaux noted that reservations can be made by writing CODOFIL, P.O. Box 3936, Lafayette, 70501.

France Represented

France will be represented at the convention by Jean LeCannellier, French Consul-general of the Southern States stationed in New Orleans, and by Mr. Jean-Michel Pettimelli, cultural attaché.

Canada will be represented by Pierre Asselin, Canadian Consul-general of the South, and Frank Hughes, Canadian Consul, stationed in New Orleans.

Quebec, French-speaking Province of Canada, will be represented by Jean-Paul L'Allier, Quebec minister of communications and civil service; Yves Michaud, Quebec commissioner-general of cooperation with the exterior; Louis Duclos, director of the American desk of the Quebec government; and Leo LeBlanc, Quebec Government representative in Louisiana permanently stationed in New Orleans. Gravel.