Cajuns in Exile

Comment Ça Va, Chers?

BY BRUCE DORIE

The Cajun nation has suffered many hardships and there are many who feel that the Cajuns have been treated unfairly by the government and the courts. It is essential that the Cajuns are allowed to live their lives without interference from others.

In the past, the Cajuns have been discriminated against and often been denied their basic human rights. This is wrong and should be corrected. The Cajuns deserve the same rights and opportunities as any other group in society.

The Cajuns have a rich culture and history that is unique to their community. It is important that this culture is preserved and not forgotten.

The Cajuns are a proud people and they should be allowed to live their lives without fear of persecution. It is time that the Cajuns are treated fairly and justly.
