THE INDIANA CENTENNIAL COMMISSION will host a Midwestern regional meeting November 1-2 in Indianapolis. Headquarters will be the Claypool Hotel. Commission chairman Carl Zenor (who will shortly assume the additional duties of director of the Indiana Sesquicentennial Commission) has organized a well-rounded program highlighting the Civil War in the Midwest. On November 1, an informal reception and dinner will start the two-day affair. Alan Nolan is principal speaker for the evening activities. Events for Saturday morning, November 2, include a premiere showing of the new filmstrip on Indiana in the Civil War, plus a panel discussion on teaching military history in high schools. Admiral E. M. Eller, Chief of Navy History, will speak at a noon luncheon. The meeting will conclude that afternoon with a symposium on the Civil War in the Ohio Valley. All persons wishing to attend this two-day affair should contact Mr. Zenor at the Indiana Commission offices, State Library & Historical Building, Indianapolis 4.

AN ALL-DAY PROGRAM commemorating the 101st anniversary of the battle of Perryville, Kentucky, will be held on the battlefield. The Louisville Centennial Committee, under the direction of Frank Rankin, is sponsoring the October 5 ceremonies. Planned for the occasion are a Boy Scout trek, small-scale reenactment, reception for Kentucky's governor, and an evening program in the amphitheatre.

NEW COMMISSION HEAD IN GEORGIA

Governor Carl Sanders of Georgia recently named Beverly M. DuBose, Jr. (left) as the new chairman of that state's Civil War Centennial Commission. President of Johnson & Higgins of Georgia, an international insurance brokerage firm, Mr. DuBose is well-known in Civil War circles as founder and past president of the Atlanta Civil War Round Table. Mr. DuBose is a native of Atlanta, a graduate of Emory University, and holds important posts with the Atlanta Historical Society, Georgia Historical Commission, and Georgia Historical Society. In addition, he is a trustee of the Atlanta Art Association and the Henrietta Eggleston Hospital.

COMMEMORATIVE CEREMONIES AT CHICKAMAUGA concluded September 19-20 with special programs sponsored by the state commissions of South Carolina, Tennessee, and Georgia. South Carolinians rededicated their state monuments with an impressive restaging of the original 1901 dedicatory program. A large audience watched Tennesseans perform a massive wreath-laying ceremony at the Tennessee artillery monument. On the afternoon of September 20, several thousand persons heard Congressman John W. Davis speak on "The Lessons of Chickamauga." Colonel Allen P. Julian of the Atlanta Historical Society added a detailed and overall summary of the Chickamauga campaign.

THOMAS R. HAY, whose Hood's Tennessee Campaign is one of the classic studies in Civil War literature, is a new member of the Board of Editors of the Jefferson Davis Association. Mr. Hay's presence adds much to the enterprise of publishing the correspondence of the Confederate president.

U. S. GRANT ASSOCIATION

The U. S. Grant Association, now duly incorporated as a non-profit corporation, is ready to receive individual and group contributions. Offices of the Association are in the Ohio State Museum, Columbus 10. The project's director, Dr. John Y. Simon, reports that some 5,000 Grant letters have been uncovered to date. Among these is a sizable collection donated by General U. S. Grant, III. Since much work remains to be done on this Centennial project, the Association hopes persons will make their tax-deductible gifts as soon as possible.
