How the DWI study was conducted:

How’s the Morning Advertiser conducted its computer-assisted study of the disposition of cases in which former platoons were arrested for multiple driving while intoxicated?

Each day of the year since the current law went into effect in 1983, the Morning Advertiser has recorded the arrests for multiple driving while intoxicated, based on jail booking records.

In addition to the Morning Advertiser’s own file, reporters also used a computerized log of all

Reporters had to find 13 arrests for more or less offenses during the study. A number of these cases could not be found because the records were incomplete.

For each day of the year since the current law went into effect in 1983, the Morning Advertiser has recorded the arrests for multiple driving while intoxicated, based on jail booking records.

In addition to the Morning Advertiser’s own file, reporters also used a computerized log of all