Denbo and Bancroft Halls are the new women's dormitories expected to be ready for fall occupancy. They were built at the cost of $3.2 million and will house 402 occupants.

The first three floors of the Vernon L. Wharton medical sciences building which will house the College of Nursing are completed and will be in use this fall. The steel frame work of the two upper floors rise above the oak trees on St. Mary Boulevard as work on that proceeds. These two additional floors will be used by the department of microbiology.

The renovation of Blackham Coliseum has been completed and the building is ready for use. With the added seating capacity since the enlargement and the addition of chairs on the floor (as for basketball games) something over 8200 persons can now be accommodated.

"Daddy" Stokes Hall is the new men's dormitory complex expected to be ready for fall occupancy. It is built as two four-storied dormitories with a separate lounge and connected with covered walks.
