Chandler Named Head Of TIRAA

Advocate 2-19-74

Chandler, a native of Tennessee, was appointed to the position of head of the Tennessee Institution of Rural American and Agriculturalists (TIRAA) by Gov. Ed Summer, who said he was pleased with Chandler's appointment. Chandler is a member of the American Institute of Rural American and Agriculturalists and has been involved in various agricultural and rural development projects.

TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.

International Orientation

The new president of TIRAA, John D. Chandler, noted that TIRAA's mission is to promote the development of rural areas through education and research. Chandler will oversee the implementation of TIRAA's programs and initiatives, including rural economic development, agricultural education, and rural community development.