ST. MARTINVILLE - The 186th anniversary of the birth of Napoleon Bonaparte was celebrated in a weekend filled with activities, dancing, and the official presentation of a new flag on the last night of the weekend in St. Martinville.

The family reunion was held in the Acadia Parish Courthouse. The event was a part of the National Register of Historic Places.

The Dupuis family originated from France and settled in the area in 1795. The family has been living in the area for generations and is known for their contributions to the community.

The family reunion included a barn dance, a picnic, and a parade. The parade was led by the Dupuis family, and the barn dance was held in the courthouse.

The family reunion was a chance for family members to gather together and celebrate their heritage.

The Dupuis family is one of the oldest families in the area, and their contributions to the community have been significant.
