Light! Camera! Action! Festivals Acadien 1984 has been fiction this year and will become a reality at the beginning of January 1985, according to Larry Gasser, SGA advisor. The filming for the feature was done by a television production house from the University of Arkansas. The University of Arkansas may also be offering the benefit of the crowd's action. The celebration will include the traditional Cajun dance and food, according to Gasser.

"The $1,000 cost for the production was the amount needed to provide the food and drinks and to provide for the upkeep of their equipment," Gasser said. "SGA helped with the costs." Gasser said, "because we feel that our Cajun culture is worth preserving on film.

The festival will be held in October, but since the Arkansas location is part of the Acadia Cultural Festival, the Gasser said the festival will be held in October. The Arkansas location is the site of the Acadia Cultural Festival. The festival will be held in October. The Arkansas location is the site of the Acadia Cultural Festival.

Gasser said that he feels that the money raised by SGA, as "will never become Festivals Acadien is an important part of the culture and an interesting experience for the nations of Acadia."
