Four Depart for CODOFIL Convention

DISCUSSING the resurgence of pride in Louisiana's French heritage are (from left) James Domenegeaux, chairman of the Council for the Development of French in Louisiana (CODOFIL); Yves Michaud, Quebec commissioner-general of cooperation with the exterior; Paul Tate, Mamou attorney who is active in Louisiana's French renaissance, and Dr. Cecil G. Taylor, bilingual chancellor of Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge. The four were together at a dinner party in Lafayette before they left for the third annual statewide CODOFIL convention in Eunice.
