French Language Study to Be Offered in Summer

Program Is Sponsored by CODOFIL

(Special to The Times-Picayune)

THIBODAUX, La. — The study of the French language in the heart of French North America, Quebec, or in the provinces of France will be offered this summer through a program sponsored by the Council for the Development of French in Louisiana (CODOFIL).

High school and college level students may participate in the study tours which will offer credit towards a degree in any Louisiana College or University.

The Quebec study program will include six hours of college credits for teachers and college level students awarded by the University of Quebec. Students will study at the College de Jonquiere. High school students who have pre-registered at a college or university may participate.

The course work includes 96 hours of classroom and laboratory work. Each student will live with a French-speaking family for one week. The study program in Canada will begin July 10 and end Aug. 13.

Students interested in studying in France, may join the program beginning June 28 and continuing through Aug. 4.

French universities hosting the CODOFIL groups are the Sorbonne and Institut Catholique, both in Paris and the Universities of Angers, Bordeaux and Reims in the respective French provinces.

Six credit hours will be granted to students completing this program which is open to college and university students only.

Students in both programs are placed in study levels according to their fluency in the French language.
