Grand Coteau Entwined in Tradition

Established by Bertha A. Bremer, former Governor of Montana, the Coteau beds are a part of the history of the area. The beds were started by the Bremer family, who were early settlers in the area. The beds were originally used for the growing of vegetables and fruits, but over time they became a popular attraction for tourists. The beds are now maintained by the Bremer family and are open to the public for visitors to enjoy the beautiful flowers and vegetables. The Bremer family continues to add new plants and flowers to the beds, making them a popular destination for visitors in the area. The beds are a testament to the hard work and dedication of the Bremer family, who have been maintaining them for generations.
Grand Coteau Entwined in Tradition

(Continued From Page 3) the last mass at St. John Berchmans, on the site, where he appeared to found Mary Wilson, a postulant in the Religious of the Sacred Heart congregation.

In June, 1904, 15 students received their First Communion. On Oct. 18, Bishop Hume

A Saint, A Postulant, A Core

A shrine graces at the shrine of St. John Berchmans, on the site where he appeared to found Mary Wilson, a postulant in the Religious of the Sacred Heart congregation.

Located on the second floor of the Sacred Heart convent, where the convent lavatory was originally situated, an estimated 150 people visit the shrine.

A Saint, A Postulant, A Core

The new chapel on St. Charles avenue, dedicated in September, was consecrated in a ceremony with the participation of the Religious of the Sacred Heart.

New Look for an Old School

New Orleans province of the Society of Jesus. It promised to boast in 1912 after the dedication of the chapel, as an educational institution for young men of the area due to its extraordinary growth. At about the same time, the Jesuits founded the St. Mary's Dominican College.

St. Mary's Dominican College