CAJUN-FLAVORED COMIC STRIP

How 'Beau Doux' Happened

The Cajun, a talented high school principal and a professional photographer, decided to preserve the French folklore of Acadia. He started a comic strip called "Beau Doux" which ran weekly in The Advertiser.

The strip was created in cooperation with a professional cartoonist and his assistant. The cartoonist worked with the principal to create a cartoon strip that would appeal to the French-speaking community. The strip was a hit and soon became a staple in the school's curriculum.

Earl Comeaux, principal of the high school, worked closely with the cartoonist to ensure that the strip accurately represented the culture and history of Acadia. The strip became so popular that it was soon being read by students across the country.

The success of "Beau Doux" encouraged other schools to create their own comic strips, leading to a boom in Cajun literature and culture.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A two-hour, 30-minute, 400-foot, 20-story, 100-foot, 500-seat building that has been under construction for two years will be opened by President John F. Kennedy on Thursday night.

The center will be the largest and most modern performing arts center in the United States, and it will include a 2,000-seat auditorium, a 1,000-seat theater, a 500-seat studio theater, and a 200-seat concert hall.

Benefits

Revolutionary new techniques in acoustics, lighting, and stagecraft will be used in the center. The center will also feature state-of-the-art facilities for the performing arts, including a 1,000-seat theater with the latest in lighting, sound, and heating systems.
