The Public Speaks

Future Under Barry Envisioned

The detractors have had their day and we are finding wanting. Despite their false accusations, phrases taken out of context, and deceitful misquotes meant as a stop-Goldwater scheme, the coalition of peculiar political bedfellows and dubious leaders of minorities must now realize that “grass-roots!” Americans are not going to be hoodwinked any longer by the heavy fog of propaganda that has settled over our country for so many years.

The zooming score of delegations pledged to Senator Barry Goldwater indicates a landslide victory for his nomination next month in San Francisco, and I have no doubt whatsoever that he will pin back the ears of LBJ, but good, and become the 37th President of the United States.

It appears to me that his election in November will produce the most sobering effect, around the world, of all this period of time.

It will stir to all nations that no longer will Uncle Sam permit the overthrow of a government, and shameful insults of the past to be heaped upon American boys, representatives, and businessmen.

No longer will this, the most powerful nation on earth, permit dictators and governments to confiscate the legitimate property and business of American stockholders, the backbone of our economic system.

No longer will our government leaders take a meek step forward and then two big steps backward as happened in Russia or anyone else. Co-existence will mean exactly that—you scratch my back and I’ll scratch yours.

No longer will the blood-suckers of Europe, Africa, Asia, and Latin America ever find the juicy skin of America so thin. They’ll have to work, build, and become part of the world.

The Mansion of Conspiracy—the U.N.—will have to put its house in order.

Irresponsible groups who think the world owes them a living will not be given preferential treatment, and the welfare state or socialism will give way to incentive and worthy programs designed to restore the unfortunate and needy to a realization of self-respect and self-sufficiency.

Barry Goldwater’s election will re-establish a two-party system which has been “dead” for decades and which is vitally needed in a free country and in a free enterprise system.

It is my fervent hope that Lake Charles, Calcasieu Parish, and the State of Louisiana will be in the corps of the general and various senator from Arizona to be able to take advantage of the many advantages it will offer.
