MURRAY MAKING — Youth work being a major activity of the LSU Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service, which celebrates its 50th anniversary with a Program in the John M. Parker Agricultural Center at 10 a.m. Monday. The Agricultural Extension Service released this picture of an at home butter making contest staged by Dairy Club Girls during the Eighth Annual 4-H Short Course for Boys and Girls held July 29-Aug. 4, 1920, when the University was located at the present site of the State Capitol. The building at right is one of the Pentagon Barracks.

LSU Ag Extension Service Marks 50th Year Tomorrow

The LSU Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service, whose agricultural and home demonstration agents represent LSU and carry a message of better farming and better living to each of the 64 parishes, celebrates its 50th anniversary tomorrow.

The annual program will be held in the John M. Parker Agricultural Center on the Baton Rouge campus beginning at 10 a.m. Monday. Friends and cooperators of Extension from throughout the state have been invited to be present, says C. E. Keene, Jr., acting director of Extension.

Dr. John A. Sentur, professor of economics, will be the anniversary speaker, talking on his topic, "Extension Tomorrow."

Another program highlight will be a message from John C. Cox, deputy director of the Federal Extension Service, Washington, D.C., who will speak on "The University in Extension Service to work with the FEIS."

Former Parish Speaks

Dr. H. C. Sanders, director of the LSU Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service, will moderate a panel discussion of experiences in building extension. Parallels will be a group of extension pioneers, including W. C. Alcott, Hope Villa, retired state 4-H Club agent; W. M. Bailey, Gonzales, retired assistant state agent and supervisor of live stock shows; Mrs. L. M. Montfort, Baton Rouge, a former volunteer leader in extension work; E. D. Gann, op-ed, retired home demonstration agent; and Gen. Sai. state and parish leaders, and serves as the chief educational agency of the United States Department of Agriculture. Extension employees are staff members of the university.

The LSU College of Agriculture Extension Service was established early in 1914, by Dr. Joseph M. Knapp of Lake Charles, educational consultant, for whom Knapp Hall at LSU is named.

The founding of the Agricultural Extension Service will be commemorated with a special program to be held in connection with Home and Garden Week at Southern University in Baton Rouge. The program will take place at 7:30 p.m., Monday in the university chapel. Dr. Hunter will be the principal speaker on this occasion.

The Southern University observation is being held as a highlight of the annual Home and Garden Week, which gets under way at Southern Monday. Among those present will be farmers and homemakers, extension workers, and retired extension staff members.

Reminiscence of the LSU Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service will take place before the subject of the Smith-Levee Act, was studied. The Extension's role, as stated in the Smith—Levee Act, is to furnish information on better methods of culture and homemaking and related topics and encourage its adoption. The adoption method of teaching by demonstration was developed early in 1914 by Dr. Joseph M. Knapp of Lake Charles, educational consultant, for whom Knapp Hall at LSU is named.

The founding of the Agricultural Extension Service will be commemorated with a special program to be held in connection with Home and Garden Week at Southern University in Baton Rouge. The program will take place at 7:30 p.m., Monday in the university chapel. Dr. Hunter will be the principal speaker on this occasion.

The Southern University observation is being held as a highlight of the annual Home and Garden Week, which gets under way at Southern Monday. Among those present will be farmers and homemakers, extension workers, and retired extension staff members.

Reminiscence of the LSU Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service will take place before the subject of the Smith—Levee Act, was studied. The Extension's role, as stated in the Smith—Levee Act, is to furnish information on better methods of culture and homemaking and related topics and encourage its adoption. The adoption method of teaching by demonstration was developed early in 1914 by Dr. Joseph M. Knapp of Lake Charles, educational consultant, for whom Knapp Hall at LSU is named.

The founding of the Agricultural Extension Service will be commemorated with a special program to be held in connection with Home and Garden Week at Southern University in Baton Rouge. The program will take place at 7:30 p.m., Monday in the university chapel. Dr. Hunter will be the principal speaker on this occasion.

The Southern University observation is being held as a highlight of the annual Home and Garden Week, which gets under way at Southern Monday. Among those present will be farmers and homemakers, extension workers, and retired extension staff members.

Reminiscence of the LSU Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service will take place before the subject of the Smith—Levee Act, was studied. The Extension's role, as stated in the Smith—Levee Act, is to furnish information on better methods of culture and homemaking and related topics and encourage its adoption. The adoption method of teaching by demonstration was developed early in 1914 by Dr. Joseph M. Knapp of Lake Charles, educational consultant, for whom Knapp Hall at LSU is named.

The founding of the Agricultural Extension Service will be commemorated with a special program to be held in connection with Home and Garden Week at Southern University in Baton Rouge. The program will take place at 7:30 p.m., Monday in the university chapel. Dr. Hunter will be the principal speaker on this occasion.

The Southern University observation is being held as a highlight of the annual Home and Garden Week, which gets under way at Southern Monday. Among those present will be farmers and homemakers, extension workers, and retired extension staff members.

Reminiscence of the LSU Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service will take place before the subject of the Smith—Levee Act, was studied. The Extension's role, as stated in the Smith—Levee Act, is to furnish information on better methods of culture and homemaking and related topics and encourage its adoption. The adoption method of teaching by demonstration was developed early in 1914 by Dr. Joseph M. Knapp of Lake Charles, educational consultant, for whom Knapp Hall at LSU is named.

The founding of the Agricultural Extension Service will be commemorated with a special program to be held in connection with Home and Garden Week at Southern University in Baton Rouge. The program will take place at 7:30 p.m., Monday in the university chapel. Dr. Hunter will be the principal speaker on this occasion.

The Southern University observation is being held as a highlight of the annual Home and Garden Week, which gets under way at Southern Monday. Among those present will be farmers and homemakers, extension workers, and retired extension staff members.

Reminiscence of the LSU Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service will take place before the subject of the Smith—Levee Act, was studied. The Extension's role, as stated in the Smith—Levee Act, is to furnish information on better methods of culture and homemaking and related topics and encourage its adoption. The adoption method of teaching by demonstration was developed early in 1914 by Dr. Joseph M. Knapp of Lake Charles, educational consultant, for whom Knapp Hall at LSU is named.

The founding of the Agricultural Extension Service will be commemorated with a special program to be held in connection with Home and Garden Week at Southern University in Baton Rouge. The program will take place at 7:30 p.m., Monday in the university chapel. Dr. Hunter will be the principal speaker on this occasion.

The Southern University observation is being held as a highlight of the annual Home and Garden Week, which gets under way at Southern Monday. Among those present will be farmers and homemakers, extension workers, and retired extension staff members.