LouAna plans expansion

Louden Foods has announced a major plans expansion that will involve a new plant in Lee County, Georgia, according to Georgia. Facilities, including storage, irrigators, and other equipment, will be completed by the end of the year.

"LouAna is one of America's largest and most profitable hog producers. The company's varied state-of-the-art facilities and processing plants will be added to the company's product line, and the company's structure will be strengthened to further expand its operations." says the announcer.

The expansion will include an additional 240,000 square feet of production space with the new building, which will produce 30 percent of the United States hog and turkey production. The company's structure and plants are expected to expand as more capacity is added.

The announcement was made at a press conference in Lee County, where the company's new facility will be constructed. The new building is expected to be completed by mid-2020 and will be used for hog production.
