TOURING FRENCH LOUISIANA — Two parliamentary representatives for Port Louis, Mauritius, a small nation in the Indian Ocean, E. Sonatte and A. Monaf Fakra, seated from left, are on a 30-day tour of French-speaking Louisiana. With them, standing from left, are Louis Schwartz, a state department representative, and Jimmie Beaugeaux, leader of the Council for the Development of French in Louisiana. Mauritius, which has adopted English as its official language, still maintains its French heritage.
