Mid-Winter Fair Opens
Acadian, Camellia Fetes

The public is invited to view the exhibits at all of these divisions. Each will be housed in Blackburn auditorium and the temporary buildings adjacent in the afternoon.

Highlights of the fair include the Camellia Pageant, Friday night at 8 p.m., and the Camellia Show Sunday, both in Blackburn Auditorium.

Exhibitors, representing 25 societies from throughout Louisiana, have entered 275 head of beef and dual purpose cattle in the 10 divisions. The South Louisiana Mid-Winter Fair was announced by Dr. C. J. Ryan, superintendent of the beef cattle division of the fair.

Last year 40 exhibitors placed entries for 125 head in the poultry division. This year, the number of entries is expected to exceed last year's number," said Royal Freeman, superintendent of the poultry division.

The entries are entered in the beef cattle division, there are classes in dairy cattle, cross division, as well as the other poultry and vegetable crops. Judging for all divisions will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday in Blackburn auditorium.

There will be cash awards as well as ribbons for winners in all divisions and non-division classes.
