Move prescribed for medical instruments

Elizabeths of Alexandria, left, and Kathryn Broome, project chairman, have been working on the history of the early days of medical practice in the United States in the new location of the Alexandria Medical Society. The exhibit will be open to the public on Saturday, March 19, at 10 a.m. and will remain open every day except Sunday until May 1.

The exhibit is held in the old medical office of the Alexandria Medical Society and is open to the public on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

While in New Orleans, Dr. Bernard Salter married the former Mary Ann Wimberly, a French citizen. The couple then returned to Alexandria and opened a medical practice in the early 1800s.

Elizabeths of Alexandria, left, and Kathryn Broome, project chairman, have been working on the history of the early days of medical practice in the United States in the new location of the Alexandria Medical Society. The exhibit will be open to the public on Saturday, March 19, at 10 a.m. and will remain open every day except Sunday until May 1.

The exhibit is held in the old medical office of the Alexandria Medical Society and is open to the public on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

While in New Orleans, Dr. Bernard Salter married the former Mary Ann Wimberly, a French citizen. The couple then returned to Alexandria and opened a medical practice in the early 1800s.