Oliver Sees Acadiana Neuf Scoring Best In Education

By ROB ANGERS, JR.

One of the first settlers involved in the war against poverty campaign in Southwestern Louisiana believes that the program has overshot its goals and that the program's critics are stretching the goals and in neighborhood service centers.

The assessment came yesterday from Mr. James B. Oliver, president of Acadiana Neuf, Inc., and former chairman of the Acadiana Neuf Inc., a grass-roots group that promotes educational opportunities for underprivileged children.

Oliver said that about 300 children were involved in the War on Poverty program in the Acadiana area.

The program, which was started in 1965, is designed to improve educational opportunities for children in the area.

Oliver said that the program has been successful, but that it needs to be improved.

"We need to do a better job of involving the community," he said. "We need to involve more parents and community leaders."

Oliver also said that the program needs to be more flexible and responsive to the needs of the community.

"We need to be more responsive to the needs of the community," he said. "We need to be more flexible and responsive to the needs of the community."

Oliver said that the program needs to be more careful in its use of money.

"We need to be more careful in our use of money," he said. "We need to be more careful in our use of money."

Oliver said that the program needs to be more effective in its use of resources.

"We need to be more effective in our use of resources," he said. "We need to be more effective in our use of resources."

Oliver said that the program needs to be more accountable.

"We need to be more accountable," he said. "We need to be more accountable."

Oliver said that the program needs to be more transparent.

"We need to be more transparent," he said. "We need to be more transparent."

Oliver said that the program needs to be more inclusive.

"We need to be more inclusive," he said. "We need to be more inclusive."

Oliver said that the program needs to be more inclusive.

"We need to be more inclusive," he said. "We need to be more inclusive."