In 1928 the business moved into the adjoining building and an entrance was cut between. During the second world war Mr. Patin built the two-story building housing the gift shop. Says he did it almost single handed as the able-bodied went off to war leaving him to finish with the help of school children! Four years ago both buildings were entirely remodeled and reorganized. Terra cotta floors were installed, air conditioning, and modern traffic-flow and self-service counters and displays.

Lionel Theriot, assistant to Patin, is of the Fournet family according to Patin, which boasts a tradition of some eight or nine pharmacists through the generations, many of them active yet.

Mrs. O. L. (Ethel) Angelle is in charge of the gift department where she stocks fine chinaware and stemware, silver, pictures, pottery, leather goods and jewelry items and religious articles. The pharmacy itself houses baby goods, drugs and sundries, toys and games, stationery and school supplies, photograph dept. and miscellaneous gifts.

In 1928 the business moved into the adjoining building and an entrance was cut between. During the second world war Mr. Patin built the two-story building housing the gift shop. Says he did it almost single handed as the able-bodied went off to war leaving him to finish with the help of school children! Four years ago both buildings were entirely remodeled and reorganized. Terra cotta floors were installed, air conditioning, and modern traffic-flow and self-service counters and displays.

Lionel Theriot, assistant to Patin, is of the Fournet family according to Patin, which boasts a tradition of some eight or nine pharmacists through the generations, many of them active yet.

Mrs. O. L. (Ethel) Angelle is in charge of the gift department where she stocks fine chinaware and stemware, silver, pictures, pottery, leather goods and jewelry items and religious articles. The pharmacy itself houses baby goods, drugs and sundries, toys and games, stationery and school supplies, photograph dept. and miscellaneous gifts.