Here, in world-famous Jungle Gardens, is a bird sanctuary created by E. A. McIlhenny, who found seven young egrets, then almost extinct, and raised them in a cage, more than 50 years ago. They were freed but returned every year in increasing numbers. The population is now over 100,000.

Color photo by Hubert A. Lowman