New Green Bus
To Start Rolling
In Lafayette

Lafayette’s city bus passengers will get a big boost Saturday.

That’s the day the bus lines will replace two of the older, yellow busses with larger green busses, according to E. J. Chatelain, bus lines manager.

The green bus now in operation is being used for demonstration purposes. The two new busses will be similar to it.

Both new busses will be used on the Veazy-Charity hospital run, and will increase the passenger potential on the run by 30 seats per hour.

The new busses will seat 32; the old ones have a capacity of 27.

Chatelain said the company plans to add two more green busses to its fleet in about six months.
