USL resident halls changing

USL's residence halls are undergoing a number of physical and policy changes as part of an ongoing program to enhance the academic environment of campus students.

Included in this program is the air conditioning of two residence halls, the placement of computers in a number of the residence halls, expanded tutorial services, a revised food service delivery system and the hiring of three residence hall area coordinators.

The air conditioning of Harris and Baker-Huger Halls and the addition of computers signal the update of the facilities. Harris, built 50 years ago, has been recently designated as the sorority residence hall. Baker-Huger now houses honor student as well as upperclassmen.

In conjunction with Junior Division and Special Services, the Department of Student Personnel is developing study groups in targeted residence halls, providing individual tutors as well as specific academic programming.

Food service changes mark the first time the university has committed to a 10-year lease. In securing the state bid, Morrison's Cafeteria has provided a plan which includes the renovation of Groucho's and five new fast food services. They are: Pasta and Pizza, Burgers, Etc., Daily Deli, World's Fair, and Pro Health Dining. The change also includes expanded cafeteria hours - 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Meal tickets can be used in all cafeterias. There also is a new snack hut constructed between Rougeau and Griffin Halls.

The final major change is the hiring of three professional staff members who will work as area coordinators of the residence halls.

Recent graduates to retired persons are encouraged to apply for this newly created position. They will be responsible for three to five halls and will live on campus. For further information about this employment opportunity, call Cheryl Evans at (318) 231-6272.
