REYNOLDS ALUMINUM WINNER — Michael Solari of Lake Charles, a University of Louisiana architecture student, has won the 1984 Reynolds Aluminum prize for the Architectural Students Jury for his work “Alumnacosm: A Prototype Townhome.” A $5,000 prize will be split between Solari and the UL architecture school. The award was presented during the annual AIA convention in Phoenix, Ariz. The national first prize which Solari won is presented once a year.