School Aid Is Defeated

BATON ROUGE, LA. (AP) - Executive director of the Citizens for Educational Freedom (CEF), Emile Comar, said the House Monday voted 47-53 to defeat a measure to clear the way for aid to nonpublic schools during an emotion-charged, three-hour debate.

"We will continue to inform the taxpayers of the state of the needs of nonpublic schools and we will be back to the legislature when they meet, whenever that is," said Emile Comar, executive director of the Citizens for Educational Freedom (CEF).

Our House voted 47-53 to defeat a measure to clear the way for aid to nonpublic schools during an emotion-charged, three-hour debate. Continue To Inform the taxpayers of the state of the needs of nonpublic schools and we will be back to the legislature when they meet, whenever that is," said Emile Comar, executive director of the Citizens for Educational Freedom (CEF).