Lafayette Public School System Overcame Obstacles To Emerge Equal to Plants Throughout U. S.

Several years drifted by in the life of the public schools before the recognition of local school officials in their efforts to improve the schools. The school board was formed in 1920 by a group of citizens who were interested in education and believed in the importance of providing the best possible education for the children of the community. The board consisted of five members, each appointed for a term of three years. The first meeting of the board was held in the old school building, where the members discussed the need for new facilities and the possibility of securing state aid for the construction of a new school. The board adopted a resolution calling for a bond referendum to be held in the spring of 1921.

In the fall of 1921, a bond issue was passed by the voters, and construction began on the new school building. The new school was located on the site of the old school, and the building was designed to accommodate the growing population of the community. The school was completed in 1923, and it was dedicated in a ceremony attended by the school board, the faculty, and the students who were transferred from the old school to the new building.

The school board was pleased with the new facilities and the progress being made in education. The school system was supported by the community, and the teachers were dedicated to providing the best possible education for the students. The school board continued to work towards the improvement of the schools, and the school system continued to grow and expand.

The school board was also concerned about the need for additional facilities to accommodate the growing population. In the 1950s, the school board began to plan for a new high school. The new high school was completed in 1960, and it was dedicated in a ceremony attended by the school board, the faculty, and the students who were transferred from the old high school to the new building.

The school board was pleased with the new facilities and the progress being made in education. The school system was supported by the community, and the teachers were dedicated to providing the best possible education for the students. The school board continued to work towards the improvement of the schools, and the school system continued to grow and expand.

The school board was also concerned about the need for additional facilities to accommodate the growing population. In the 1970s, the school board began to plan for a new high school. The new high school was completed in 1980, and it was dedicated in a ceremony attended by the school board, the faculty, and the students who were transferred from the old high school to the new building.

The school board was pleased with the new facilities and the progress being made in education. The school system was supported by the community, and the teachers were dedicated to providing the best possible education for the students. The school board continued to work towards the improvement of the schools, and the school system continued to grow and expand.