The opening reception will be today, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., with the exhibit continuing until November 15.

Swamp scenes, wildlife, flowers, oilfield scenes and shrimp boats are the subjects of the artwork to be displayed. Mediums include oil painting, sculpture, stained glass, china painting, etching and original crafts. Emphasis is being placed on oil industry related artwork for this exhibit.

Calvin Blue, a prominent local artist known for both photography and oil painting, will be featured in this exhibit.

Louisiana Scenes
A native of Louisiana, Blue has been recognized as capturing the moods of Louisiana.

Others Represented
Many other area artists, both professional and amateur, will be represented in the Louisiana exhibit.

Three Fold Gallery is a non-profit organization for the furtherance of area talent. Now entering its second year at the Red Barn, the gallery shows artwork ranging from professional artists of national prominence to amateurs who create for a hobby. Gallery hours are from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays, and from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Saturdays.

The stained glass windows of Roger Laurant will be of interest in this exhibit. Laurant is new to this area and has studied with Paul Dufour at LSU where the only stained-glass courses in the nation are taught. Laurant conducts stained-glass classes locally, and has prepared several magnolias in stained-glass for this exhibit.

Mildred Hardy McKnight, well-known artist, demonstrator and teacher, will be presenting new painting. Ranging in size from over five feet tall to the tiniest miniatures, her work has been recognized as capturing the moods of Louisiana.
