USL receives prize property, cash gift.

The J. Arthur Roy House at 1204 Johnston, is now on the National Register of Historic Places and was recently purchased by USL. It's being used as a center for forensic activities and as an office for graduate communications students.

Hawkins House

The W.W. Hawkins House at 213 Amelia St. was purchased by USL, for a total gift of $417,800, to be used as a faculty club. The lot is appraised at $417,800.

Both Roy and his wife, the former Cornelia Philomene Bailey, were members of pioneer settlers of the area. Cornelia Philomene Bailey was a daughter of William Britton Bailey Jr., maternal grandfather of the J. Arthur Roy children, and a charter member of John's Church (now St. John's Cathedral) and was a charter member of the Knights of Columbus, when it was established here. Roy House

The J. Arthur Roy House at 1204 Johnston, is now on the National Register of Historic Places and was recently purchased by USL. It's being used as a center for forensic activities and as an office for graduate communications students.

Lot donation

Mrs. Beatrice Thibodeaux of Opelousas, the former Clare Roy, is shown signing papers, donating her home at 213 Amelia St. to Lafayette and University. It is appraised at $38,000.

USL receives prize property, cash gift.

The J. Arthur Roy House at 1204 Johnston, is now on the National Register of Historic Places and was recently purchased by USL. It's being used as a center for forensic activities and as an office for graduate communications students.

Hawkins House

The W.W. Hawkins House at 213 Amelia St. was purchased by USL, for a total gift of $417,800, to be used as a faculty club. The lot is appraised at $417,800.

Both Roy and his wife, the former Cornelia Philomene Bailey, were members of pioneer settlers of the area. Cornelia Philomene Bailey was a daughter of William Britton Bailey Jr., maternal grandfather of the J. Arthur Roy children, and a charter member of John's Church (now St. John's Cathedral) and was a charter member of the Knights of Columbus, when it was established here. Roy House

The J. Arthur Roy House at 1204 Johnston, is now on the National Register of Historic Places and was recently purchased by USL. It's being used as a center for forensic activities and as an office for graduate communications students.

Lot donation

Mrs. Beatrice Thibodeaux of Opelousas, the former Clare Roy, is shown signing papers, donating her home at 213 Amelia St. to Lafayette and University. It is appraised at $38,000.

USL receives prize property, cash gift.

The J. Arthur Roy House at 1204 Johnston, is now on the National Register of Historic Places and was recently purchased by USL. It's being used as a center for forensic activities and as an office for graduate communications students.

Hawkins House

The W.W. Hawkins House at 213 Amelia St. was purchased by USL, for a total gift of $417,800, to be used as a faculty club. The lot is appraised at $417,800.

Both Roy and his wife, the former Cornelia Philomene Bailey, were members of pioneer settlers of the area. Cornelia Philomene Bailey was a daughter of William Britton Bailey Jr., maternal grandfather of the J. Arthur Roy children, and a charter member of John's Church (now St. John's Cathedral) and was a charter member of the Knights of Columbus, when it was established here. Roy House

The J. Arthur Roy House at 1204 Johnston, is now on the National Register of Historic Places and was recently purchased by USL. It's being used as a center for forensic activities and as an office for graduate communications students.

Lot donation

Mrs. Beatrice Thibodeaux of Opelousas, the former Clare Roy, is shown signing papers, donating her home at 213 Amelia St. to Lafayette and University. It is appraised at $38,000.

USL receives prize property, cash gift.

The J. Arthur Roy House at 1204 Johnston, is now on the National Register of Historic Places and was recently purchased by USL. It's being used as a center for forensic activities and as an office for graduate communications students.

Hawkins House

The W.W. Hawkins House at 213 Amelia St. was purchased by USL, for a total gift of $417,800, to be used as a faculty club. The lot is appraised at $417,800.

Both Roy and his wife, the former Cornelia Philomene Bailey, were members of pioneer settlers of the area. Cornelia Philomene Bailey was a daughter of William Britton Bailey Jr., maternal grandfather of the J. Arthur Roy children, and a charter member of John's Church (now St. John's Cathedral) and was a charter member of the Knights of Columbus, when it was established here. Roy House

The J. Arthur Roy House at 1204 Johnston, is now on the National Register of Historic Places and was recently purchased by USL. It's being used as a center for forensic activities and as an office for graduate communications students.

Lot donation

Mrs. Beatrice Thibodeaux of Opelousas, the former Clare Roy, is shown signing papers, donating her home at 213 Amelia St. to Lafayette and University. It is appraised at $38,000.

USL receives prize property, cash gift.

The J. Arthur Roy House at 1204 Johnston, is now on the National Register of Historic Places and was recently purchased by USL. It's being used as a center for forensic activities and as an office for graduate communications students.

Hawkins House

The W.W. Hawkins House at 213 Amelia St. was purchased by USL, for a total gift of $417,800, to be used as a faculty club. The lot is appraised at $417,800.